DID YOU KNOW?

Golden Gate Park in San Francisco consists of over 1,000 acres of public land and is the 5th most visited park in the U.S. The Academy of Sciences museum is one of the 10 largest natural history museums in the world.

The park was modeled after New York's Central Park. It is named after nearby Golden Gate Strait, not the Golden Gate Bridge, which was erected 67 years later.

The park was carved out of unpromising sand and shore dunes; 50,000 trees had been planted by 1875. Many San Franciscans took refuge in the park following the 1906 earthquake.

The Dutch-style windmills are working structures which pump water throughout the park.

The Beach Chalet opened in 1925 and later expanded with the addition of the Park Chalet (our dog-friendly lunch destination).

Chris Hyde's favorite attraction is the Japanese Tea Garden, where she would go with her grandmother to feed the ducks.

Join CATC's July 21 walk to personally experience the beauty, nature, and culture that this storied park has to offer!
